Altitude Record Is Set Monday by U. S. Explorers

Stratosphere Fliers Climb to 74,000 Feet Over South Dakota

NEW WORLD MARK

Previous Record Claimed by Russians Who Went 72,177 Feet

RAPID CITY, S. D.—(AP)—Captain Albert W. Stevens reported that the stratosphere balloon Explorer Second, had reached 74,000 feet, setting a new unofficial world altitude record Monday.

The mark surpasses even that set in 1934 by three Russian fliers, who were killed in the descent. The Russians were credited with climbing 72,177 feet.

Balloon Takes Off

RAPID CITY, S. D.—(AP)—Explorer Second, the world's largest balloon, took off at 8 a. m. Monday on its long awaited journey into the stratosphere for scientific exploration.

Culminating a six-week's wait for perfect weather conditions, the giant craft rose successfully from the rock-walled natural bowl, 11 miles southwest of here, about two hours behind the scheduled ascent.

Captain Orvil Anderson, who was accompanied by Captain Albert Stevens, commander and scientific observer, expected to land about 3:35 p. m.

Preparation Made

RAPID CITY, S. D.—(AP)—Inflation of the world's largest stratosphere balloon in preparation for flight Monday on a scientific exploration trip started in the rock-walled natural bowl, 11 miles southwest of here Sunday night.

Officials said about 230,000 cubic feet of helium would be injected into the giant bag.

Confident, despite failure on two previous attempts to attain their complete objectives, Capt. Albert W. Stevens, observer and commander of the flight, and Capt. Orvil Anderson, pilot, believe their craft probably will reach a record height of approximately 75,000 feet.

"We think we have every obstacle whipped this time," said Captain Anderson as the 3,700,000-cubic-foot capacity bag was hauled from its cradle for inflation.

Series of Raids In Hope Saturday Net Half Gallon

On complaint of several local whiskey stores, city and county officials raided 11 alleged moonshine joints in Hope Saturday and the net result was one-half gallon of illegal liquor.

These Enson, negro, was arrested with the half gallon of untaxed liquor. Officers were unable to find any moonshine in any of the other 10 places.

Some of the liquor stores, officers said, had complained that moonshine whiskey was being transported and sold in large quantities.

Participating in the raids were Deputy Sheriff Reginald Bearden, R. O. Robbins, City Policemen John Turner and Hugh Bearden, and Revenue Agents, Ed VanSickle and C. C. Mitchell.

Wash Hutson Is Buried Sunday

Funeral Services Held From First Baptist Church at 2:30 p. m.

Final tribute to Wash Hutson 60, one of the most widely known men in Hemphstead county, was paid Sunday afternoon when more than 500 friends packed the First Baptist church to attend funeral services.

A throng that was unable to gain entrance, stood outside the church until driven to shelter by a shower of rain.

The services were conducted by the Rev. Wallace R. Rogers, pastor. Last rites were brief, but solemn and impressive.

Probably the most touching part of the services was when a quartet sang a request number for the deceased, "When I Wake to Dream No More."

The quartet was composed of Sweeney Copeland, Claude Taylor, Clifford Franks and Otto Taylor.

At the end of the service, friends who had come from all parts of the county and adjoining counties, filed past the bier. The body was then taken to Rose Hill cemetery for interment.

Former County Judge Born in Pike county, Mr. Hutson came to Hemphstead with his parents when a small boy. He later moved to Howard county and for nine years was associated with mercantile firms at Nashville.

He moved to Hope 23 years ago, was associated with mercantile establishments here a number of years and then was elected county clerk and county judge, serving two terms in each office.

He was active in church affairs, and was president and treasurer of the Arkansas State Singing convention for a number of years.

Two months ago he was stricken ill. Last Friday afternoon he suffered a stroke of apoplexy and died early Saturday morning.

He is survived by his widow, five sons, three daughters, four brothers and three sisters.

Farmers Get $71,612,285 During July and August

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration reported Sunday that $71,612,285 in benefit payments to farmers were distributed in July and August.

Total AAA expenditures in the two first months of this fiscal year were $89,111,906. Preliminary estimates of processing tax collections in August were $12,820,863, compared to $39,906,447 in August, 1934.

If taxes now imposed in suits challenging AAA's validity had been paid, officials said, receipts would have paralleled closely the budget estimates on which expenditures are based.

AAA expenses in the two months included $394,569 for removal and conservation of surplus; $3,046,275 for drought relief and disease eradication; $2,176,224 for trust fund operations; $7,114,622 for administration; and $4,612,930 for tax refunds.

New Testimony Introduced Against A. P. Company

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The Arkansas Supreme court affirmed judgment Monday of $1,500 each obtained in Hemphstead circuit court by Bobby Joyce Gwilliams and her sister, Norma Jean Gwilliams, against the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company.

The children sued over injuries received from eating allegedly tainted and impure food purchased at the company's store at Hope.

Monday was the second time the case has been submitted to the Supreme court. New testimony introduced at the second trial resulted in the verdict of the Hemphstead court being affirmed by the Supreme court Monday.

Quorum Court Is Convened Monday

No Appropriations Announced Pending Ruling From Attorney General

Hempstead quorum court convened at Washington Monday, but the county's budget establishing appropriations for the various departments of the county government for 1936 were not definitely fixed, pending a ruling from Attorney General Carl Bailey.

The exact appropriation for each department of the county government will not be fixed until the court meets again, scheduled for the first Monday in January.

County Judge Stephens convened court at 9 a. m. The session was to continue until late in the afternoon.

Another Warning for Street Tax

Delinquents Given Until Thursday—Warrants to Be Issued

Police Chief John W. Ridgill issued another warning Monday to delinquent street tax payers, and said that unless the $2.50 levy was paid by Thursday warrants would be issued.

If the tax is paid by Thursday there will be no penalty, he said, but in the event warrants are issued the penalty would be left up to the court.

Chief Ridgill said that he planned to serve about 25 warrants and that court would be held Friday morning. He said that from time to time additional warrants would be issued until all delinquents had been brought to court.

There was no municipal court Monday, all cases being postponed because of Armistice Day. The city hall was closed.

U. S. Maintains Small Army While Rivals Arm Millions

By NEA Service
Seventeen years ago peace came after four years of war to end war. Today and military machines of the United States have been built to a strength never before known. Only the United States has held aloof from this mad race to put millions of men under arms.

In the American army, if an emergency arose today, only 30,000 men would be available for swift action. The entire strength of the U. S. land forces is 118,750 enlisted men—with approximately 10,000 officers, the list topped by 67 generals.

Thirty-two thousand regulars are in our foreign possessions; 86,000 in continental United States. Just 86,000 men—about 8000 more than could be packed into Yankee Stadium in New York City.

Of this 86,000, about 36,000 are engaged in various kinds of clerical and educational tasks; 20,000 officers and men are on the Mexican border. And the other 30,000 are ready for the emergency, according to a recent survey of Fortune magazine.

The cost of the U. S. army in 1935 is given as $295,900,000. In 1936, a little more will be spent for military purposes—$365,000,000, or a million dollars a day. will bring the enlisted men strength up to 165,000, with modern equipment.

Reserve forces, army chiefs estimate, would provide about 2,000,000 men in two years. By the 1920 act, the national guard total is placed at 430,000 and there are 120,000 reserve officers.

In the World War the U. S. forces engaged were: Regulars, 543,773; volunteers, 728,234; and drafted, 2,783,094.

Killed in action or died of wounds were 50,510, of which a total of 2457 were marines.

Though the United States has refused to place hundreds of thousands of men under arms, remaining eighteenth in rank among the world's armies, it is modernizing its forces as rapidly as possible, many units having been mechanized and motorized in the last year, with corresponding increase in strength in the naval and air arms.

Appeal Sent Out for Clothing for School Children

More than 100 children were absent from the city's schools Monday and the number of absentees will be even larger unless clothing is provided immediately, a spokesman for the schools announced Monday.

The city in its entirety will be canvassed Thursday, November 14, by committees from the Parent-Teachers association. Every citizen will be asked to donate at least one article of clothing, new or used.

Style or size is of little matter. A committee of women armed with shears and machines is ready to make the necessary alterations.

Won't you check your closets and attic. That was the appeal Monday. If you do not plan to be at home Thursday—leave the clothes with a neighbor or bring them to the city hall.

Wiseman Has Close Call
LITTLE ROCK.—Two well known Arkansians, Earl R. Wiseman, state revenue commissioner, and Harvey G. Combs, Missouri Pacific Lines attorney, were narrowly escaped when they were involved in an automobile accident early Sunday, but they counted themselves lucky to have escaped with their lives.

One of them, Mr. Wiseman, credited the other with filling the role of rescuer.

"I was caught in the car, unable to move, with my head under water," Mr. Wiseman said at his home Sunday night. "If I had not been rescued, I would have been drowned."

The two men were on route to Little Rock when presumably Mr. Combs, driving Mr. Wiseman's car, dozed momentarily, and the car left Highway 67 between Cabot and the Pikes River, and overturned in a ditch in which the car was three feet deep. The door on the left side of the car sprang open and Mr. Combs was able to go to Mr. Wiseman's aid.

Your Health

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

Now that the winter season is coming on us, we will begin to close tight
 the windows in dwellings and in offices in which we live and work, and many people will begin to suffer from bad or vitiated air.

"Cold air is stimulating. Fresh air seems to be the one real tonic of which we have any information."

When you go from a room with vi-tiated air into the fresh air, you feel stronger and more capable of doing a good day's work.

But there is also, at the same time,
 the possibility of overexposure to cold. You know, this overexposure has the definite effect of lowering the resistance of the body to disease.

When you are exposed for long periods of time to bad air, you begin to feel the effects almost immediately,
 and they gradually become worse.
 There is a feeling of tiredness, then come headache and dizziness, and later collapse.

In the Black Hole of Calcutta, in 1756, 146 men were shut into a room 18 feet square, with only two small windows on one side. They were shut in at 8 p. m. When the doors were opened the next morning at 6:20, only 34 were living.

At the battle of Austerlitz, 300 Austrian prisoners were captured by the soldiers of Napoleon and put into a small cellar. Within a few hours, 260 were dead.

Several explanations have been offered as to effects of bad air. Apparently the effects are not due to any poisonous substances contained in the air that is breathed out.

One poisonous substance of which we have knowledge is carbon dioxide gas. There is hardly a sufficient amount of this present to bring about such serious results.

The experts feel that the effects are physical as well as chemical. The heat-regulating mechanism of the body is involved.

It becomes impossible for the body
 to give off heat because of the physical condition of the air. As a result, fundamental changes take place in the body tissues, resulting eventually in death.

Some people feel that the stimulation of winter is responsible for the increased progress of civilization in northern zones.

"Certainly all of us should take advantage of these well-established facts."

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

Harry Hansen, who has been a book reviewer since way back when, tries his hand at a novel in "Your Life Lies Before You," and does a very neat job of it.

His book is an unpretentious story about life in a small Mississippi river city in Iowa at the turn of the century, and it deals chiefly with three people—a violinist, a girl who can't quite decide whether he is going to be a great writer or a great musician, but who is sure that he is going to be a great something; a warped old genius of violinist who has drifted into the town and supports himself by giving lessons to scrub-nosed hopefuls;
 and the violinist's daughter, who is ardently loved by the nice young man.

Our young man is a reporter on the local paper. Falling for the girl, he begins taking violin lessons from her father to get into her good graces, and unexpectedly reveals genuine musical talent.

Then the father sends the girl to Chicago to have her voice trained, and the young man promptly drops everything to follow her, getting a job on a Chicago paper and forgetting all about his fiddle.

Just as he gets going nicely, she comes home again—he throws up his job and follows her.

All this works up to an unexpected and rather harrowing climax, in which the ardent lad takes a severe bump-ing from life; and the story is memorable for its vivid picture of river-town life and its sympathetic story of youth and its emotions, its ambitions, and its pathetic, confused hopes.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Now off with your children. It's half past eight and I want you settled before we go out.

"My, you look lovely, Mother.
 Where are you going?" asked serious
 Eleanor.

"Over to Thompsons to play bridge.
 It's a party."

"Bring me a piece of cake!" piped up Jackie.

"Greedy-cat," laughed his mother,

kissing him. "Maybe."

"Wake me up when you come home
 will you?" pleaded Bert. "I'm not sleepy. I don't want to go to bed.
 Can't I play the radio a little while?"

"Shoo." Waved away the boy, the mother, then upstairs, Eleanor called.
 "When I grow up I'm going to wear blue velvet to parties—always."

In the car their mother was thoughtful. "I feel guilty every time I leave them," she remarked. "It seems so selfish to go off by ourselves all decided out like Christmas, just as they're pulling on those very unbeautiful nighties."

Past as Precedent
 "You had to do it and so did I
 when we were little."

"Not so much, I think. Once in a while. Oh yes, I know we have to do it a lot. Times have changed and social life is part of business success.
 But when my parents went out I was as jealous as a cat, too. I never got used to the fact that they liked other people and a good time better than they did me—sometimes at least."

"I think it's good for them," said her husband. "Kids are naturally selfish. If they had their way we'd go to bed when they did and not have an iota of fun that did not include them."

 JEAN DUNN, secretary to DON-ALD MONTAGUE, lawyer, delays
 her answer when BOBBY WAT-KINS, automobile salesman, asks her to marry him.

At the Golden Feather night
 club she meets EDDY HARKINS whose business connection is vague. Sandy introduces Bobby and Jean to a Mr. and Mrs.
 LEWIS. Bobby asks some hints
 for Lewis, who gives a hint.

LARRY GLENN, federal agent,
 is waiting. WATKINS, punk robber, is looking for the hand transaction and questions Bobby.
 Larry believes the car Lewis bought is a secret. Bobby engages to a secret engagement with Sandy. The bank of which her father is president is robbed and Larry starts a search for the robbers.

Jean goes to see Sandy who has been injured. He and the Lewis are sitting at a farmhouse. She soon finds herself a virtual prisoner. The whole party leaves the farm.

Larry learns the robbers were

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
 CHAPTER XXXV
 TALKING to his co-workers,
 Larry Glenn had remarked that it was nearly as important to checkmate the people who gave aid and comfort to gangsters
 as to catch the gangsters themselves, since the latter would be helpless without the assistance of the former.

Bobby Wallace, the young man who sold automobiles for Mark Hopkins and loved Jean Dunn with what seemed each day to be more and more a hopeless love,
 had never heard his wise remark.
 But he was devoting himself,
 nevertheless, to a bit of amateur sleuthing aimed in precisely that direction.

Larry had told him how gangsters are able to buy armored cars which look like ordinary pleasure cars but which are actually bulletproof and therefore exceedingly useful in the sort of marauding forays to which gangsters are addicted.

Larry had gone on from there to remark that it looked very much as if WINGY LEWIS, the gangster who had passed himself off on the innocent Bobby as an ordinary business man, had bought such a car from Mark Hopkins, Bobby's employer; and had urged Bobby to watch closely for any corroborative evidence that might be available, and to let the Division of Investigation men know about it at once if he found it.

Bobby, therefore, had gone
 sleuthing—and, he believed, had found something.

After learning that Hopkins and MacFarlane, superintendent of the repair shop in Hopkins' auto sales agency, had made a mysterious trip together, Bobby had gone on the trail and discovered a queer, secret factory, hidden off in the wastes of the southeast fringe of Dover, and nowadays, in a slowly rising excitement, he was keeping eyes and ears open in an effort to learn more about it.

FOR some days his efforts were fruitless. Then it occurred to him that he needed some way of getting an occasional bit of stray information from Hopkins' private office; and to further this end he began to be attentive to Mary Ann Nichols, one of the three stenographers on the agency's payroll.

Mary Ann was short, dark, and slightly chubby, and she was immensely flattered by Bobby's unexpected attentions; so that after a very short time they had

hunt ways to make your telephone service better

You'll probably never see these men ...

but they work for you, just the same.

Some of them are business and technical experts on the staff of American Telephone and Telegraph Co., parent company of the Bell System. Some are scientists, at work solving telephone problems in Bell Laboratories, research unit of the System. Some are skilled workers in the factories and plants of Western Electric Company, which manufactures and purchases for the 24 operating companies of the System.

All of them contribute to the constant stream of new ideas, new inventions and new developments which pour out from these specialized units of the System to aid

 us in the job of handling your telephone calls. For many years their combined efforts have been of definite help to us, as one of the Bell System operating companies, in accomplishing two things:

They have helped us give you better
 telephone service.

And they have made it possible to furnish that improved quality of service without increased cost to you.

Engineers and executives of the Southwestern Company adopt these developments for actual, day-to-day
 use in the job of handling your telephone calls.

World Celebrates Armistice Monday

Roosevelt Delivers Address at Arlington National Cemetery

By the Associated Press
By martial atmosphere, the world Monday celebrated the 11th anniversary of the end of the World war. Fascists continued their push deep into Ethiopia and Premier Mussolini told Italians their armies were ready to defend their "interest in Europe, Africa or anywhere else."

President Roosevelt, standing before the Tomb of the American Unknown Soldier, pledged that the United States "will ever seek ways of peace," but "must and will protect herself."

President in Address
WASHINGTON—(AP)—On a grassy, woodland ridge sweeping up from the Potomac, the president Monday will offer a nation's homage to its hero war dead.

From the humblest homes, from austere embassies, from the highest offices of government, thousands will join Mr. Roosevelt in solemn tribute to the unknown soldier sleeping on Arlington's hallowed hillside.

Not for him alone and his comrades who poured out their blood on the soil of France will honors be lavished. The unknown soldier lies today as a perpetual symbol of all American manhood which bravely has died for the flag.

Over the gleaming marble tomb of the man who sacrificed life and name in a "war to end war" roll the mocking shadows of East African battle clouds.

That threat to peace presumably will be in the mind of the president when he lowers a wreath on the white sarcophagus, and when he sends brief word to the nation of his hopes and determination that the United States ever must remain aloof from foreign conflicts.

Promptly at 11 a. m., the exact hour at which World war guns seventeen years ago ceased sowing death, his voice will fade into the tender, lulling notes of "Taps"—in life the soldier's slumber song; in death his requiem.

The clear, lingering bugle tones will whisper through the dignified colonnades of a stately amphitheater, around the mast of the battleship Maine, over the bowed heads of assembled thousands, to die away among the even rows of crosses that mark the resting places of military immortals and unsung warriors.

Mr. Rogers was assistant to David R. Francis in the general management of the Columbian Exposition in St. Louis and has been connected with many other enterprises of magnitude.

Members of the executive committee of the Arkansas Centennial commission made an exhaustive survey of centennial celebrations, and after becoming convinced that Mr. Rogers was the outstanding director of the United States, tendered him a contract. Mr. Rogers was prevailed upon by former Arkansians, with whom he was associated in other ventures, to accept the directorship in preference to offers made to him in the East, and when he came to Arkansas, he came prepared to enter upon his new work.

Mr. Rogers has probably the most complete library upon pageants and celebrations in the United States, and has placed it at the disposal of the Centennial commission. It has already been shipped to Little Rock.

H. C. Conch, chairman of the Arkansas Centennial commission, and J. G. Leigh, vice-chairman, will spend this week in the East, in the interest of the centennial, and on Friday will confer with President Franklin D. Roosevelt concerning government participation in the big event.

WITH THE LADIES

By Helen Welshimer

Men and women are human beings before the distinction between sexes occurs. But once the segregation takes place it requires some pretty strenuous merger efforts to get them back on the same plane again.

There's the matter of food, for instance. If a man likes onion soup, he expects his wife to like it, too. If he doesn't want her to try it, the chances are that his love needs re-planting or he'd insist that she share the delicacy.

A woman to move across the table, and back to the family kitchen—will prepare a dessert that her husband likes regardless of her own dislike of it. It's a sign she loves him.

A man is hurt unless his wife likes his best friend, at once, hanging, a rosary of approval around her neck of dear old Ed or Pete or Joe.

A woman breathes naturally again when her husband remarks that he doesn't see what she likes in Mary or Sue or Kate.

A man loses the hair on the top of his head and preserves a good neckline. A woman saves her hair and loses her single chin.

A man sets out on a trans-oceanic flight and is queried about air tides and currents and technicalities while the woman who goes along is asked what she is putting in the lunch boxes.

Women Sport Their Men Folk
For every difference there is a reason.

Women have spoiled men always. They have forgotten their own pains when a man had a cut finger in order to minister to his comfort. They have led him to expect the food that best suits a pampered palate. They have told him that any food is twice as sweet if it is the one he chooses, and let the tray of French pastries go by while they concentrated on stewed apricots—if he wanted them.

Why should they believe us when we work so hard to deceive them?

A man has more egotism than a woman. He isn't afraid that his wife will notice that Ed or Pete or Joe has a better waistline than he has. Or what if she does? He is sure that he is loved for something of his own so he saves himself a lot of needless worry.

A woman, on the other hand, has had to fight her way through lopsided competition and it's music in her ears every time she receives an announcement that she has taken another hurdle. She hasn't quite learned the great difference between those two small words—liking and loving.

Historic Family Setup Explains Division of Duties
That matter of the preservation of various parts of the anatomy has a good firm foundation, too. A famous beauty expert, Rose Laird, explained all that the other day.

"Men have to twist their necks when they shave and put in collar buttons when they dress so of course they retain their youthful contour. Women forget to exercise their neck muscles since they aren't required to do it in the process of dressing. When it comes to hair women have the advantage. They brush their hair and exercise it when they arrange it. Men don't perform these mechanics. They wear tight hats, too. Consequently the upper half of a woman's head is younger than a man's but the lower half of a man's head is younger than a woman's."

The whole set-up of family life—and you can be as pre-historic as you please about it—explains the division of duties in a family. In her delightful

In the 45-minute semi-final Stanley Rogers of Minneapolis, will tangle with the Bald Eagle of Burbank, Alaska. Both are new comers to Hope wrestling fans.

tion, and has a record of highly successful statewide celebrations extending over a period of 30 years.

Among them are the Massachusetts Ter-Centenary, Georgia Bi-Centenary, Yorktown celebration, New York Silver Jubilee, and seven years as director of the Grand Central Palace in New York City.

Mr. Rogers was assistant to David R. Francis in the general management of the Columbian Exposition in St. Louis and has been connected with many other enterprises of magnitude.

Members of the executive committee of the Arkansas Centennial commission made an exhaustive survey of centennial celebrations, and after becoming convinced that Mr. Rogers was the outstanding director of the United States, tendered him a contract. Mr. Rogers was prevailed upon by former Arkansians, with whom he was associated in other ventures, to accept the directorship in preference to offers made to him in the East, and when he came to Arkansas, he came prepared to enter upon his new work.

Mr. Rogers has probably the most complete library upon pageants and celebrations in the United States, and has placed it at the disposal of the Centennial commission. It has already been shipped to Little Rock.

H. C. Conch, chairman of the Arkansas Centennial commission, and J. G. Leigh, vice-chairman, will spend this week in the East, in the interest of the centennial, and on Friday will confer with President Franklin D. Roosevelt concerning government participation in the big event.

SO THEY SAY

I know the working classes do not need big navies. It is their rulers who want them to protect their lives, their money and their pockets.—Olivier Baldwin, son of Britain's prime minister.

"Low-Brow arts" are genuine arts. They satisfy native needs in human nature.—John Dewey, Philosopher and educator.

There is no danger of a dictatorship from the Left; the Right is too strong; it is from the Right that the dictatorship is coming.—Oswald Garrison Villard, noted liberal.

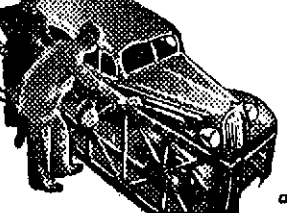

Does anyone think that war between great nations can be a limited war and that meanwhile we can trade with both sides in prosperous neutrality? We cannot bolt ourselves in an armed citadel and survive.—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin.
